Emma Thompson: "Journey" Art Installation

"The room is recreated with exquisite attention to detail: a scribbled price list for sexual services on a whiteboard. A large bowl with condoms spilling onto the end table. Half-used lipstick scattered among twisted thongs, high heels and toilet paper. A sickly perfume-type smell that clings to the torn wallpaper. A grimy stained bed designed to shudder under the weight of invisible, moving bodies. Men's voices that alternately issue commands and groans. The room is part of an immersive art exhibit, "Journey," that depicts the experience of being a sex trafficking victim..."

Running in the Shadows: For Runaways, Sex Buys Survival

"Most of the estimated 1.6 million children who run away each year return home within a week. But for those who do not, the desperate struggle to survive often means selling their bodies. Nearly a third of the children who flee or are kicked out of their homes each year engage in sex for food, drugs or a place to stay." complete article
